

Kathryn Hurchla

<https://dadededa.design>

Kathryn Hurchla is a data developer and designer. A note from Data Design Dimension is a sign she has a crush on working with your data or telling your story. She earned a master's degree in data analytics and visualization after learning the art of getting things done with technology in two world-renowned organizations. She writes about data science in the real world and contributes to uplifting data communities as a Plotly Dash Ambassador and an author liaison with Data Visualization Society's Nightingale Editorial Committee. Find her in conversations ranging from affordable homeownership to forestry or just mountain biking and being in nature.